A 5-pound flatiron contains enough iron to make four hand grenades. Incidentally, the flatiron itself is frequently used as a hand grenade, and can be quite destructive in case of a direct hit.

A government bridge crew has arrived and started this morning clearing away debris and the remains of the old highway bridge which caved into Lyon Creek on Main street during the flood.

Signalman A. Gordon Swart, of Cowley, has passed his test in international wireless code at Vimy Barracks, Kingston, Ontario, being the highest rating candidate for speed. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Swart, and prior to enlistment was telegraph operator with the C.P.R.

Mrs. Ella Caggie King, of Calgary, daughter-in-law of Editor and Mrs. R. L. King, of Clareholm, won the Stutbury cup at the Alberta Musical Festival in Calgary. George Burles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Burles, of Cowley, was awarded the Shelleny cup.

RED CROSS TO STAGE TOMBOLA

The Blaimore Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has decided to stage a tombola in the interest of local funds. Six attractive prizes have been offered, two of which; two pairs of pillow cases, were donated by Mrs. Mark Drumm, now of Filmore, California, but resident of Frank in the early days when her husband was publishing The Frank Paper. The pillow cases are the handwork of Mrs. Drumm, and in an accompanying letter she expressed the hope they would assist in the good work here. The tombola prize list is as follows:

$5.00 War Savings Certificate, donated by Mrs. J. R. Smith.
Pair of Pillow Slips, donated by Mrs. Drumm.
Crocheted Table Centre, donated by Mrs. Germain.

Pair of Nylon Hosi, donated by Mrs. F. M. Thompson.

Pair of Pillow Slips, donated by Mrs. Drumm.

Two Pairs Silk Hosi, donated by Mrs. L. P. Robert.

Tickets will be on sale tomorrow at 25 cents each. Help the Red Cross. We understand that a letter has been forwarded to Mrs. Drumm from the local Red Cross, thanking her for her kindly interest and support.

WOMEN'S DIVISION, R.C.A.F.

Applications for all trades in the Royal Canadian Air Force (Women's Division) are required immediately by the R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, Calgary. Trades included are: clerks (accounting, general and stenographers), cooks, dental assistants, drivers (transport), equipment assistants, fabric workers, hospital assistants, telephone operators, postal clerks, general duties and messengers.

Requirements: Good character, age 19 years to 40 years inclusive, medically fit and at least 5 feet in height, minimum of high school entrance, be able to pass appropriate trade test.

Married women with children and permanent civil servants are ineligible for enlistment in the Women's Division.

Address all communications to the Commanding Officer, R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, Calgary, Alberta.

The floods gave fish an opportunity for special training. They will now know how to grab such bait as rats and mice, thousands of which were swept away. One citizen is of the opinion that not a rat or mouse remains alive in Blaimore, and that it may be necessary to import some from Saskatchewan.

Carry your registration certificate.

BOB BOWMAN AND WEST COAST DEFENCES

R. T. "Bob" Bowman has spent eighteen months of the war in Britain as the rest looking for trouble on the high seas, covering the story of Canada's expanding services and defenses, getting in a game or two of golf, playing his superior for new marching orders. Recently it was announced that he would conduct a get-it radio class from Toronto. Instead of the programme came a cable. Bowman was back in Britain to dig up and broadcast the weekly commentary of news from there for Canadians at home. He will be heard Sundays at 4.30 M.D.T. The picture shows Bob interviewing the crew of a defence battery on the Canadian west coast sometime early this spring.

BLAIRMORE EMERGES FROM THE FLOOD

Blaimore has about recovered from the excitement and worry of the flood week, and citizens have since been busy clearing away the debris, replacing buildings, steps, fences, etc., and incidentally figuring the actual amount of damage to their properties in a monetary way. In many cases losses were far more extensive than at first realized, and in near as many others less. But to those who have sized up damage done in the various towns of the Pass in proportion to population, Blaimore has by far been the hardest sufferer.

One of the West Canadian huge trucks that sank through the centre of Seventh Avenue near Stuart Street while offering service when the flood was at its highest pitch was recovered on Saturday last with assistance of a powerful tractor. The front end of the truck was almost completely under the sands and it had to be pulled back. Another truck, belonging to the F. M. Thompson Co., that had similarly become engulfed a short distance away, was also recovered on Saturday afternoon. Damage to the trucks was reported slight. Rescue of the town's service truck from Lyon Creek, where it became embedded prior to the collapse of the main street bridge, was undertaken on Monday afternoon, but it still remained there up to yesterday, and may have to stand nose upward till the wreckage of the bridge is moved away.

On Saturday considerable dredging work was done along Lyon Creek south and west of the C.P.R.

Hundreds of tons of soil are required to replace that washed away from town gardens, but trucking service has been very much at a premium.

Repairs to the highway between Frank and Blaimore have been effected, but new bridges are to be installed over Gold Creek and Iron Creek. This work will shortly be undertaken. Traffic over the McVey bridge was closed Monday, and it is believed this two-span structure will be used to span Lyon and Gold creeks. One of the biggest puzzles in connection with the flooding of Crow's Nest river is to understand just how a 150-foot section of cribbing could so well negotiate its way underneath the Sixth Avenue footbridge without carrying away that structure with it. That section of cribbing landed side up against some trees about seven hundred feet further down the river.

Probably to make life seem more cheerful, many back yards in central and the eastern portion of Blaimore were littered with bottles that had at some previous time contained many brands of the liquid that cheers. Some of these were passed on to the good people of Frank or maybe Lethbridge—anyhow, where most needed.

Another freak was the removal by the flood waters of a 75-foot iron smokestack a distance of about three blocks, not in the regular river course, but through a lane and street. The stack is about 30 inches in diameter at the base and very slightly smaller at the top, and would at least weigh one and a half to two tons. Other freaks included several garages carried away a block or two, where they fell apart, leaving the cars standing intact.

Those who attempted to pump out their own basements had to relieve the whole block or more of water. Thanks from most of the neighbors all. Many premises were blessed with a year's supply of firewood, while others lost as much.

The town itself has a problem to face, for in every section of the town breaks in the water mains have occurred, necessitating employment of many men on repair work. Likewise with the electric light and telephone services, both of which were for a time disrupted.

Waters are slowly receding, but it may be weeks before any work such as cribbing, etc., can be undertaken.

During the week the C.P.R. has reinforced their tracks through East Blaimore with about forty cars of rock from the Frank slide.

RED-CROSS PACKS FOOD PARCELS FOR WAR PRISONERS

Behind the barbed wire of German and Italian prison camps thousands of British, Canadian, Australian and New Zealand prisoners of war look forward to the weekly food parcels they receive through the International Red Cross at Geneva. The Canadian Red Cross is now packing these parcels at the rate of 2,000,000 per year, and hopes to increase this to 4,000,000 by the end of 1942.

Messrs. H. Zak, S. J. Lamey, D. A. Howe and Ben-Hobson were visitors to Lethbridge on Wednesday afternoon.

At a meeting in Calgary this evening, Hon. Lucien Maynard will speak on "What shall we do?" Well, that's what the people of Alberta have been wondering ever since 1935. Other people try to fulfill promises.

William Conquest, 75, editor of the Athabasca Echo, died on Saturday. When he first came to Canada, he and his family came to Beaver Mines to visit old friends, the McDowalls. Mr. Conquest worked for a time relieving at the Pincher Creek Echo office in 1924.

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

Many anxious hours ended for the parents of eight-year-old Peter Sytune, of Hillcrest, when the lad was found near the Rock Creek bridge, some three miles west of Lundbreck and ten miles from his home, late on Saturday night. He was in an exhausted condition when discovered by Mr. J. Morgan, who was proceeding home to Pincher Creek from the Pass. The boy arrived in Hillcrest with his parents from Beverly, Alta., and stayed overnight through the brush while playing with other children. Sensing something wrong, Mr. Morgan returned to Burmis and contacted the Melsaas family and others, and when all failed to identify the lad he was brought to Bellevue, from which point the R.C.M.P. were notified. Search parties organized earlier by Sergt. Mudiman, consisting of members of the force and volunteers from Hillcrest, who were still scouring the district, were immediately called in when the welcome news became known. It is very fortunate that the lad was located, considering the distance he must have covered in a district wholly strange to him, and at this time infested with puddles and dangerous water holes as a result of the recent flood. Where he crossed the river, or why he was not seen in his trip of approximately ten miles may never be known.

Mrs. A. Semanick is visiting her daughter and friends at Lethbridge. N. Frolic, of Creston, is visiting friends here.

Dante Ubertino, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ubertino, of Brooks, will graduate from the University of Alberta this term with the degree of bachelor of arts; Dante is at present at Sarcee Military Camp near Calgary, taking the officers' training course.

A most successful market and sports day was held at Lundbreck on Wednesday under auspices of the Lundbreck-Mayeroff Red Cross. Farm produce, poultry, live stock, home cooking, plain and fancy articles, etc., were on sale and brought good prices. The sale was opened by Col. Tomlinson, head of the provincial organization. The dance at night was very largely attended.

BIG CARNIVAL AT BELLEVUE

The annual carnival of the Bellevue Skating Association opens today in the Bellevue arena, and will continue through tomorrow and Monday, when the May Queen will be crowned.

Weather today looks ideal for the occasion and no doubt the attendance will be large.

Five candidates are in the running for the May Queen election.

COWLEY WILL CELEBRATE MONDAY, VICTORIA DAY

The committee in charge of the Victoria Day sports at Cowley look forward to a big crowd and a successful event on Monday next. It is several years since the last big event in Cowley.

A splendid programme of races and games is promised. The grounds have been newly graded and are in perfect condition. Refreshment booths will be operated by the Red Cross ladies.

While Alberta is establishing new treasury branches (toy banks) to lose money, the chartered banks of Canada are closing banks to save money.

"Total war and a high standard of living simply can not march together... they are simply contradictory terms. That is a very simple fact, yet few individuals seem to have asked themselves what they ought to do about it. It has not yet dawned on them that if we are to organize for total war it is the people who must take on the job." — Donald Gordon, chairman Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

"Memoirs," initial publication of the Blaimore Deaneery, depicting Catholic Youth progress and activity, was released from The Enterprise presses the early part of this week. The booklet, to which branches of the C.Y.O. from Macleod to Coleman contributed, contains 28 pages and is brimful of interesting and well written matter. It is hoped to make "Memoirs" an annual magazine and to show improvements in future editions. The following comprise the Deaneery Council: Rev. Dean M. A. Harrington, Blaimore, chaplain; Vic Kemble, Macleod, president; John Francis Dobek, Blaimore, vice-president; Doris Dobek, Blaimore, secretary; Mary Panek, Coleman, treasurer.

BREAD
lays the Foundation for Canadian Health and Fitness

MORE THAN any other single food, bread has helped to give Canada a high health record.

Bread is viewed as the best source of human fuel. It is rich in carbohydrates and, made with milk—as is usual today—bread is also an important source of protein... A source equal to meat in muscle building and muscle repair.

Canadians get one-fourth of their food energy from bread! Eat more of it and keep fit for present-day emergencies!

YOUR BAKER'S SKILL, scientific equipment—and the finest ingredients—give you a loaf undepressed in wholesome-ness and delicious flavor.

Canadian Agriculture

CANADIAN AGRICULTURE is now just as essentially a war industry, and just as vital to our war effort, as is the production of armaments. The old saying that an army travels on its stomach, is no doubt as true today as in the past. The first requisite of the army, navy and air force, both at home and abroad, is that the men and women who compose these services are provided with proper food and maintenance. It is not only our own Canadian forces that must be provided with food from Canada. Vast quantities of farm produce must be shipped, and has been shipped to Britain in order to sustain the populace and the fighting forces in the United Kingdom. In the first two years of war Canada has shipped more than three hundred million bushels of wheat and seven million barrels of flour. In the same period Canada shipped more than eight hundred million pounds of bacon and other pork products, one hundred and ninety-five million pounds of cheese, fifteen million dozen eggs, and thirteen million pounds of honey.

Facing The Situation

Canadian farmers, knowing full well the urgency of the situation are going to produce as never before. Here in the West, perhaps unfortunately, it has been found necessary to turn at least to some extent from wheat growing to other crops that appear more essential for the prosecution of the war. A reduction this year of three per cent. in acreage sown to wheat in 1941 is indicated. Western Canada is particularly adapted for the growing of wheat, and this has always been our main crop. However, the necessities of war must now override other considerations, and this year more attention is going to be paid to the growing of flax, barley and other crops. Flax is needed to produce oil for our war industries and barley will be used for feed for hogs to provide bacon for Britain. In this war it has been truly said that we are all in the front line, and the man on the land is bearing his full share of responsibility. He has been carrying on in the face of many adverse circumstances, and with grit and determination is prepared to do his full share in this fight for the preservation of democracy.

Meeting A Heavy Task

Thus in entering the new crop year of 1942, the Canadian farmer has set himself to the task of producing the essential crops to the limit of his capacity. Farm products will be shipped to Britain in quantities only limited by the carrying capacity of ships and Canada's ability to produce. Given favorable growing conditions and a minimum of the set-backs that plague the life of the farmer, it is expected that the West will be able to contribute largely to the shipments going overseas. It is believed that measures will be taken to ensure sufficient help on the farm. Many farmers have enlisted for overseas service, but regulations have been provided in respect to enlistments to avoid any shortage of men that would seriously affect this important industry. Provision has also been made in respect to the supply of necessary parts to keep farm machinery in repair. And so the farmer puts his hand to the plough, not looking back, but with a grim purpose to do his part in no small way in this fight for victory.

To Help Win War

Harvester Dealers In Drive For Scrap Iron From Farms

An organized effort to collect all the scrap metal possible from Canadian farms to help meet the critical war production need for scrap at the nation's foundries and factories was announced by Mr. H. C. Ray in charge of advertising and sales promotion for the International Harvester Company of Canada, Limited. The scrap collection campaign will be conducted by International Harvester dealers in their localities and is part of a Dominion-wide drive for scrap from farms by harvester dealers in 3,000 communities.

The drive, Mr. Ray said, is a contribution to the national salvage campaign and has received official sanction from Honourable J. T. Thomson, Minister, Department of National War Services. The campaign has been undertaken by the Harvester Company in the belief that the strategic location of its farm equipment and motor truck dealers in farm trading centres and their acquaintance with farmers provide the shortest cut to farm scrap collection on a large scale.

The plan calls for the establishment of scrap collection depots to which farmers may bring all the scrap metal they can find on their farms and from these points the scrap will be sent as quickly as possible to factories turning out guns, tanks, and other war supplies. The scrap will be sold through regular salvage channels with remittance to each farmer for the full amount his scrap brings. There will be no charge, no commission, or no profit in it for the Harvester dealer who performs his service as a patriotic duty.

"A measure of the possibilities," Mr. Ray said, "is the enormous pile of scrap iron and steel on the country's farms. The estimates run into hundreds of thousands of tons. But unless this scrap starts to move at once, steel mills will have to reduce operations, the production of arms will slow down, and more lives, time, and money will be spent in fighting the war to a successful finish.

On practically every farm there is a lot of scrap iron—scrap that is badly needed right now. And knowing as we do that no people anywhere respond more readily than farmers to a cause of this kind, we believe the farmers in our territory are going to pitch in and get this scrap into town and on its way to the factories."

ALL-BRAN REALLY IS DELICIOUS AND IT KEEPS US REGULAR...NATURALLY

Says Mrs. George H. Tremblay, Chateaufort, Quebec: "I can tell you that I wouldn't care to be without KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN now. The cause of constipation is due to lack of the proper bulk in the food. Kellogg's All-Bran is the best of it, as it gives more than just temporary relief."

Why don't you try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause

if you are troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of 'bulk' in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It gives you a real, regular and drink plenty of water. ### A FAMOUS BRAND

Ogden's FINE CUT

Located on Big Hill Creek, Cochrane, Alberta, the Oxyoke Ranch, founded in 1887 immediately following the Flax Rebellion, is still maintained by W. Hutchinson, one of the founders. Comprising 10,000 acres of range land, the ranch annually grazes more than 1,000 head of fine beef cattle.

For Canadian Filers

Chapel in Scotland Has Also Recreation Room And Canteen

Somewhere in Scotland, Canadian and English army men share the use of a chapel built by the United Church of Canada. The only Canadian church in Britain, it is known as "The Church of Canada House."

An unpretentious building similar to many others on the airfield, it houses besides the chapel, a recreation room and a canteen where tasty snacks are prepared by a little waitressed Scotswoman whose mother was a Canadian.

The money for the chapel was given by the United Church of Canada to the United Church of Scotland which supervised the erection of the building, a long structure of wood at the side of a road beside the big airfield.

One of the first Sunday services conducted at the chapel by V. L. Gordon Porter of Lakefield, Ont., an C.A.A.F. padre whose church is at Hamilton, Ont., attracted more than 150 members of the Canadian squadron, a Beaufighter unit led by Sqd. Ldr. Maurice Lipton of Sydney, N.S., and Belleville, Ont.

In the recreation room there are shelves of books and writing tables with letter paper and envelopes. There is a rolling concert stage behind a collapsible wall which is removed if there is an overflow of attendance at a church service. The chapel proper and recreation room can accommodate 1,500 persons.

HOME SERVICE

SIMPLE EXERCISES EASE ACHING FEET

Let me sit down! gasps the woman with aching feet. Even her oldest shoes haven't relieved the strain on her tortured foot muscles. Severe pain, a haggard expression and poor posture are the result.

Simple exercises for the feet would do wonders for her—enable her to step gladly along like her smartly shod companion.

Usually the metatarsal region in the ball of the foot is the first to give trouble. Under pressure this part strains the muscles that hold the bones in place.

To strengthen your metatarsal region so it can "take it"—do this simple exercise.

Lay a towel on the floor and keep feet pointed straight ahead, place toes on edge nearest you. Keep heels on floor and, using gripping movements of the toes, pull towel back under the insteps. Repeat 5 to 7 times.

With right exercises you can correct other body faults too—have a trim, young figure. Our 32-page booklet gives illustrated exercises to slim the waist, hips, legs, to improve bust, shoulders and arms, to relieve back and nerve troubles, constipation. Has exercises to improve posture, a daily routine for whole body.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Best Exercises for Health and Beauty" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, to Mr. Arthur A. Winnip. Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Guerrilla warfare. That's something we hear quite a lot about today. It's good thing to hear about, too. If there had been the same activity by Guerrillas in France that there has been in Russia and Yugoslavia, the story of the past two years might have been different.

Of course, we have to be careful how we talk about war these days, it is so easy to say the wrong thing. Talking about defence, for instance, I'm not a deep enough student of the art of war to know who first said, "the best defence is to attack." I am a deep enough student of human nature to know that we ourselves are responsible for the heavy emphasis on defence in our national life.

During the lush years that ended in 1929-1930 we were, most of us, much too busy making money and "having a good time" to pay any heed to the possibility that we might have to attack a potential enemy before he could attack us.

We were too busy learning new ways to spend our easy money, too busy making necessities out of luxuries that we didn't need and would have been better without to do anything but applaud, or at the most, mildly deride politicians who voted to cut down our military expenditures. We were too anxious to have money to spend to demand that it should be taken from us in taxes to pay for military training. We were too fond of a soft time to join the Canadian Militia and keep in touch with the changes that were taking place.

We even changed the name of the Department of Militia to the Department of National Defence, thus perpetuating the thought of defence against aggression in place of the more virile, more Canadian ideal of attack against aggression.

Well, that's all water over the dam now. Let's hope we never need to feel the law of gravity and drown back again.

But this was to be about guerrilla warfare? It is. Guerrilla warfare is attack in the most modern manner. It is attack by small bands, under many leaders who use their discretion in the handling of their small units to carry out the general plan of military operations, damaging important installations, severing and disrupting communications.

The "infiltration" we heard so much about during the fight on the Malay Peninsula was guerrilla warfare, much of the fighting going on in China against the Japanese, a good deal of the training of the Home Guard in the Old Country is guerrilla warfare.

In Canada the set-ups of the Mobile Force in Quebec envisions guerrilla warfare. So does the plan of organization of crack-chabolas in British Columbia. There is a strong probability that training of the new Reserve Army will provide plenty of exercise of a guerrilla nature.

We Canadians should be "natural" as Guerrillas. We hunt, trap, skilfully and nuzzle all over regular life is less accessible to formal armies. We are used to the open, have to know how to stalk and take cover if we hunt big game—and many of us were Boy Scouts when we were young.

It will interest many former Scouts to know that "Scouting for Boys," the "Bible" of the Boy Scout movement, is recommended as supplementary reading for today's soldiers.

What has all this to do with the new conception of the Individual Citizen's Army—meaning all of us? Well, we can be guerrillas too. There is many a hampering, delaying, disrupting action that we can fight in our own homes. Every time we are patriotic enough to observe the spirit rather than the letter of conservation and rationing regulations we fight a small guerrilla action against the Axis.

Every time we report an infraction of the rental regulations—even if it goes against the grain—or a case of charging more than the basic price we fight a small but important guerrilla action against the common enemy.

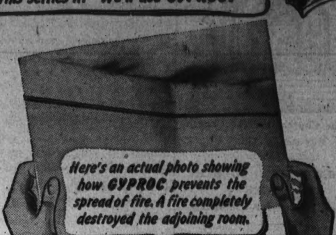

If we are to win—and that means if we are to exist—we've got to save time, money, materials. But we can't do it sitting down, can we?

CONSERVING TIME

A lady, checking over her grocery bill, found this item: "One tom cat, 15c entz." Indignant, she called up her grocer and demanded to know what he meant by such a charge. "Oh, that's all right, Mrs. Blank," he replied, "it's just an abbreviation for tomato catsup."

No More Fancy Luggage

Unnecessary Gadgets Use Material Needed For War Effort

Fancy luggage will soon be a thing of the past, it was learned at Toronto from E. J. Shoemaker, administrator of luggage, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Unnecessary pockets, dress hangars and twin locks will be missing from dressing cases, club bags and trunks soon to conserve precious rubber, rayon and metal for the war effort.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

ALLEGIANCE
Where justice reigns, 'tis freedom to obey.—Montgomery.

The man who for party forsakes righteousness goes down, and the armed battalions of God march over him.—Wendell Phillips.

I know that the Lord is always on the side of the right, but it is my constant anxiety and prayer—that I may be on the Lord's side.—Abraham Lincoln.

The government of divine Love deserves its omnipotence from the love it creates in the heart of man; for love is almighty, and there is no loyalty apart from love.

In the observance of the laws of God and in the promise of the Gospel of Jesus Christ there is the best guaranty of peace upon earth and the only hope of eternal life.—Benjamin Harrison.

The strength of a man consists in fading out the way God is going, and going in that way too.—H. W. Beecher.

SMILE AWHILE

Nell—What makes you think he's married?
Belle—Because he's such a good listener.

"I'm not half good enough for you."
"Why, Bill, you talk just like one of my own family."

Interviewer—What have you to say about anonymous letters?
Professor—They're stupid. I read them but I never answer them.

Hubbard—I miss the old cupid since it's gone.
Wife—You missed it before, that's why it's gone.

"Oh, please, ma'am," gasped the nursemaid, "I've lost little Nora!"
"Gracious, girl! Why didn't you speak to a policeman?"
"I was speaking to one at the time, ma'am!"

Being questioned whether he was in a position to keep a wife, Sandy confidently replied in the affirmative.
"There's hardly a mornin'," he said, "but a leave some o' ma parritch; in fact, if a dinnin get a wife soon a' man get another walkin' breakfast for you."

"I hope, dear, that you get up when you're called," wrote the fond mother to her boy in the Army. "And don't keep the regiment waiting breakfast for you."

"Johnny, come and kiss your Aunt Agnes."
"Aw, gee, mom, what did I do now?"

Look Out! A Sick Liver is Dangerous

Do you have persistent headaches and backaches? Are you tormented by rheumatic pains in muscles and joints? A sluggish liver is clogging your whole system. Serious ill health may result.

Our liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands. If unhealthily, your body lacks this energy and becomes enfeebled—rheumatic pain disappears. Again your liver pours out bile to digest food, get rid of waste and allow proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order proper digestion and nourishment stop—you're poisoned with the waste that decomposes in your intestines. Nervous troubles and rheumatic pains arise from this poison. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. The whole system is affected and you feel "routen," head aches, backache, dizzy, tired out—a ready prey for sickness and disease.

Thousands of people are never sick, and have won prompt relief from these miseries with "Improved Liver and Kidney Pills." This liver is loaded up, the other organs function "Improved Liver and Kidney Pills" are Canada's largest selling liver pills. They are good! Try them yourself. "L.K. Pills" are Canada's best back on the road to lasting health—feel like a new person. 25c, 50c.

"Always in Pain, Now Grand Relief!"

I suffered so badly from rheumatism and backaches that I couldn't hardly walk. After taking Fruit-Lax for four days I was smiling and I was able to climb a ladder. I have no more bother with rheumatism or neuritis and advise any person suffering as I have to use Fruit-Lax. It gives quick relief. William J. Freese, Toronto, Ont.

"Sixty-Four Years in Hospital—Now Free!"

I had a bad case of biliousness and constipation. I became so sick and back-ached that I couldn't get on my feet. I tried to get rid of it by using cathartics, but they only made it worse. After taking Fruit-Lax for a few days I was smiling and I was able to climb a ladder. I have no more trouble with biliousness or constipation. Now I have no more headaches or backaches and can do my housework without being tired. Mrs. E. Dodson, London, Ont.

Post-War Plans For Employment Are Considered

Ottawa.—Full employment for every Canadian after the war is the nucleus around which the government's advisory committee on post-war reconstruction is building its program for the period of demobilization and re-establishment. Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University and chairman of the committee, said.

Dr. James was appearing as a witness before the House of Commons committee on reconstruction and rehabilitation.

"Employment of every employable Canadian is essential for the full prosperity of the Dominion," he said. "All the potentialities of our country should be directed toward that end."

This meant demobilized service men and munitions workers must be absorbed into the Canadian economic and social structure with, if possible, an increase in the standard of living. To attain such condition plans for reconstruction must begin during the war.

After the armistice, soldiers will not be given cash bonuses in lump sums, but will be paid in instalments while they are under-going training or re-establishing themselves in agriculture or industry. Dr. James stated, there will be a boom following the war.

"It will give us a slight breathing spell, and should accelerate the changeover from wartime to peacetime industry as an insurance against unemployment," he said.

"However, it will be necessary to relax some of our controls in the interest of freedom of enterprise. Private enterprise, labor, capital and industry should be given the help of government to reconstruct Canadian industry."

"Definitely there will be a post-war depression, and to meet this we will have to have a government plan of government-financed projects to reconstruct Canadian industry," Dr. James said.

Post-war employment, he said, is a purely domestic problem and already committees are studying its solution.

Conservation and utilization of national resources was a second domestic problem. Canada's forests were an important factor in any reconstruction program, both for their preservation and for their use to provide employment.

A third problem was to develop public financial projects to provide employment in areas where there is unemployment.

"Turning again to relaxation of wartime controls, Dr. James said: 'It would be chaos if they are relaxed as soon as the war is over. The Allied nations will have to have a co-ordinated plan.'

Each group of society would be restless for relaxation. The procedure should be to find how controls could be modified step by step, to avoid chaos that followed relaxation of bacon controls in England in 1919. This matter was being studied.

Studies were also being made of the agricultural problem. The solution depended partly on foreign trade and partly on new universal consciousness of nutrition and the importance of proper feeding. If feeding were really adequate there would be a market for all agricultural products.

Another major domestic problem with international implications was the turning of wartime industry to peacetime industry. If it were not dealt with there would be great unemployment and lack of consumer goods. The advisory committee had asked major Canadian industries to co-operate by creating their own committees.

ISSUES ORDERS

Australian Prime Minister Says Striking Miners Must Resume Work Canberra, Australia.—Prime Minister Curtin called upon groups of striking coal miners to return to work or face governmental action, and said "the government shall stand or fall by the issue." If the miners do not go back to the pits, the prime minister told parliament, authority will be invoked "to compel them."

BUDGET DOUBLED

Belfast.—The Northern Ireland budget presented by Finance Minister J. Milne Barbour provides for a provisional contribution to the empire war chest of £21,500,000 (£94,500,000), almost double last year's record contribution of £11,750,000.

ARRIVES SAFELY

Canadian Icebreaker Montcalm Has Reached Northern Russia

Ottawa.—The Canadian icebreaker Montcalm has arrived safely in northern Russia and remains at the service of the Soviet government for the duration of the war, it was announced.

The Montcalm is the second Canadian icebreaker, to serve in those waters under war conditions. Toward the end of the first Great War an icebreaker newly-built at Glasgow for the Canadian government was loaned to Russia by the British government with the consent of Canada.

The Montcalm has been in the Canadian service for many years in eastern waters.

The Canadian master and crew were to deliver the ship to the Russians who will operate it themselves. The Canadians are expected back in Canada shortly.

The ship is believed to be now in service in the White sea keeping the water passage between Murmansk and Archangel open for the movement of troops and supplies for the Russian forces.

Wants Separate Canadian Air Force Overseas

Ottawa.—Air Minister Power told the House of Commons that he encountered some resistance in the part of both Royal Canadian Air Force and Royal Air Force officers, to his policy of "Canadianizing" the R.C.A.F. overseas.

He said he also encountered some lack of enthusiasm on the part of the British air ministry, but he intends to persist in the policy.

"Nothing is dearer to my heart than the Canadianization of the R.C.A.F.," said the minister. "I should like to get all the support I can in parliament. And I don't know when I have had a greater sense of frustration than in my attempts to Canadianize the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas."

The minister said there were arguments both for and against the policy of grouping Canadian airmen in all-Canadian squadrons rather than mixing them up in the general pool of the R.A.F.

Some Canadian officers, brought up in the traditions of the R.A.F., were not sympathetic to the policy of segregating Canadians. An argument against segregation was, that Canadian officers could not enjoy the same opportunities for promotion to high commands, if Canadians were in their own squadrons, as they were dispersed through the Royal Air Force.

The minister made his statement in reply to T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn) who suggested Canada should, if possible, have an independent air force overseas and Canadian squadrons co-operating with the Canadian Army.

Maj. Power said squadrons are attached to the Canadian Army for army co-operation purposes and that he hopes there will be more.

The air minister told the house that air training in Canada was nearing the point where graduates will be prepared for actual warfare prior to going overseas instead of, as at present, completing operational training abroad.

Conservative House Leader Hanson questioned if it were practicable to have an independent Canadian air force overseas and Maj. Power agreed it was not. But, the minister said, much could be done to group Canadians together and identify them as Canadians.

When Defence Minister Ralston was overseas last year, an agreement had been reached to establish 25 Canadian squadrons in the R.A.F. in addition to three R.C.A.F. squadrons serving overseas. So far, 22 of those squadrons had been established.

SLIGHT ADVANCE

Will Be Allowed In Prices Of Canned Salmon

Ottawa.—Retail and wholesale prices of canned salmon will be allowed to advance slightly. Neil McLean, fish products administrator for the wartime prices and trade board, announced.

Retail dealers will be permitted a one-cent increase on pound containers and half a cent for each half or quarter pound tin. Wholesalers are allowed 50 cents extra a case of 48 one-pound containers or 94 half or quarter-pound tins.

SINK JAP SHIP

Allied Bombers Got One Ship And Set Two Others On Fire

Allied Headquarters, Australia.—Allied bombers in a 1,500-mile round trip above northern Australia, sank a 3,000-ton Japanese ship at the Japanese-occupied Netherlands Islands of Amboina, and set two others afire, General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

Other Allied air units falling on a surprise Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain Island, dropped bombs on 15 Japanese bombers drawn up on a runway, blowing up three of them, and severely damaging "many others," the communiqué said.

Aside from the one Japanese ship sunk, the communiqué said that direct hits on two other ships, one of 3,000 tons and one of 2,000 tons, set them afire.

FOR THE NAVY

Plan To Establish Canadian Fleet Mail Office At London

Ottawa.—Establishment of a Canadian fleet mail office at London, England, and extension of the airmail service to naval personnel, was announced by the naval services headquarters.

Arrangements have also been completed for naval personnel serving abroad to receive parcel post, heading quarters said in a statement outlining postal arrangements for men in the Royal Canadian Navy, both on Canadian ships and serving with the Royal Navy.

HOME GUARDS TRAIN

London.—Home Guards are being trained in small numbers to meet anti-aircraft defences. If the experiment is successful, larger numbers will be given complete charge of one vital section of the defences.

Off For Service With United Nations

Typical of U.S. production are these five Boeing training planes, fresh from the company's plant at Wichita, Kansas. Side by side they fly, and each is bound for a different country or service. From top to bottom they will go to Peru, Great Britain, China, the U.S. navy and the U.S. army air corps.

Britain's Battle Fleet Guards Lifelines Of The Empire

On constant guard along the life-lines of the British Empire are the big ships of the British navy. Among them, as pictured in this striking photograph, is King George V, one of the newest and best battlehips in the world. She was photographed from the deck of an accompanying aircraft carrier. The navy, always on the alert, scored a smashing success in the Mediterranean recently with the sinking of four big Italian transports, rushing war material to Tripoli. They were sunk by two British submarines. All were heavily laden, the admiralty announced.

TRAIN IN CANADA

British Plan May Take In Pilots For United States

London.—The air correspondent of the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post said extension of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan to production of pilots and air crews for the United States may follow the forthcoming air training conference in Ottawa.

The Americans have not yet fully developed their own training facilities and it seems the obvious solution that they should use those already to hand in Canada," the correspondent wrote. "It also appears likely that the other United Nations will be invited to send men to Canada for training."

RECRUITING IN INDIA

London.—The British Broadcasting Corporation quoted its representative in New Delhi as saying that "Indian volunteers are pouring into the recruiting centres of the city at the rate of 100,000 a month."

Britain Reaches Highest Point In War Production

London.—Britain's war production is at the highest point in history and will continue to expand until the limit of manpower and resources has been reached.

It is reliably understood the output of guns, shells, bombs and other weapons of war for the air force and army in the first quarter of 1945 was twice as great as in the third quarter of 1940, the Dundee period when Britain went "flat out" in preparation for an expected invasion.

Production will continue to expand throughout this year, it is confidently predicted. The extent of the expansion will be limited by the supply of labor, raw materials and machine tools, but the flood has not reached its peak.

The story of British production, which in relation to size of population is greater than that of any country in the world, is one of revolution from pre-war unpreparedness to the present position in which some 55 per cent of the country's resources are being devoted directly to work for the government.

Articles considered necessities in peacetime—automobiles, radios, kettles, saucepans, refrigerators, greeting cards, electric heaters, to mention only a few—no longer are being manufactured or are being turned out in such small quantities they are almost unobtainable.

More and more the country is being geared to the war effort. Less than nine per cent of Britain's total import of raw materials in 1941, exclusive of articles for food production, was for civilian use. The percentage will be even lower in 1942.

The output for the first quarter of this year was some 40 per cent higher than that of last summer. Factories launched in the first year of the war came into production in the autumn of 1941; the victory in the Battle of the Atlantic resulted in an unbroken flow of raw materials; new men and women workers brought into industry "got the feel" of their jobs and the output increased accordingly.

Production Of Munitions Have Been Increased

Ottawa.—Canadian explosives plants are producing 75 per cent more than their estimated capacity, and one gun plant is producing two and one-half times as much as was expected of it. Munitions Minister Howe told the House of Commons.

The minister opened his review of munition and supply department activities, as debate on the war appropriation bill continued.

Production costs in Canada compared well with those of the United States and United Kingdom, Mr. Howe said. Quality was all that counted. The department had placed contracts for more than $4,000,000, greater than the pre-war national debt.

Airplane industries had expanded their personnel by 400 times since the war began, and intake ran at the rate of 2,000 a month, representing men from farms or from schools without mechanical knowledge.

Perhaps two shipbuilding yards now are fully manned and 17 still were in process of expansion. A sixth yard in Montreal had laid its first keel since the war. One 10,000-ton merchant ship was being launched every four days, and this production rate would be increased to one every three days.

Great Lakes and deepwater yards were "full out" on the production of corvettes and minesweepers, and, as output would be expanded further, objectives were being approached.

About 14,000 small boats had been built since the start of the war, including wooden fairies, minesweepers and smaller craft.

Mr. Howe said aircraft production was about 400 machines a month.

"We have accepted very considerable orders for operational training planes from the United Kingdom and the United States."

The government company, Federal Aircraft Ltd., had been criticized. The minister said, but he considered the work of this company more outstanding than any other item of the aircraft production record.

Industries established by Federal Aircraft covered 50 or 60 plants where work would be continued at least until the end of the war.

Canadian industry was "full out" in the production of motor vehicles, now in excess of 250,000 units, and Canadian machines had seen service in every area of active combat. The "most interesting—the universal carrier"—had been stepped up to very large production.

The Angus shops at Montreal were producing tanks at a uniform pace at the objective set. Commitments had been made for the supply of tanks to Russia and at the end of the three months the Canadian shipments were even with these commitments.

A second tank-building establishment—the second largest on the continent—was not up to capacity because of the difficulty in obtaining transmissions from the United States. As transmissions were received they were installed and the re-equipped tank was driven away the same day.

Many navy guns had been made and a Vancouver factory making this weapon was coming into production. Particularly good results had been obtained in the manufacture of gun mounts, which presented more of a mechanical problem than the guns themselves.

A program to provide special radio equipment for the Canadian and British navies had been undertaken.

Field guns and small arms factories were almost all in production.

All previous figures for production of Bren guns, Colt-Browning aircraft guns and Boy anti-tank guns at the Inglis factory in Toronto had been greatly exceeded, but the minister said he could give no detailed figures.

NEW AIR SERVICE

Will Soon Be Operating Between United States And Europe

London.—A new airline, carrying passengers, mail and freight, will start operating soon between the United States and Europe.

The American Export Lines announced that four-motored flying boats will make a proving flight within the next two weeks. And soon after that, it is planned to begin a regular service of four flights weekly.

Pan-American Airways also is scheduled to resume North Atlantic service shortly.

"TO YOU WHO ARE LEFT BEHIND IS A HUGE TASK"

(From the Good Friday issue of the Toronto Globe and Mail)

An unfinished letter, its lines filled with the triumphant and unflinching spirit of its author under the shadow of death, has been bequeathed by a 25-year-old Canadian bomber pilot as his last message to a world in which he no longer lives.

"I am the lucky one, as I have gone to the land where there is no time. It will be only a momentary lapse in the infinite before you are all with me, and so, courage!"

So wrote Flight Sergt. Reg. Robb before he was shot down while piloting a bomber against the enemy on February 26th. He left the unfinished letter in his commanding officer's possession with a message that it should be delivered to his father, Judge W. T. Robb, of Orangeville, when the simple arithmetic of death, which he knew so well, would call his number.

Here's the text of the letter, which it is hoped will bring a message of hope, consolation and peace to other mothers and fathers:

Dear Dad, Mother, and all the beloved Robb family:

I can give this letter no date, as it is possible that it may never be used, but in case anything goes wrong this will be my last word to all of you.

Don't feel sorry for me, as I've gone to something better, and the day is not far removed when we shall all be reunited. I have lived a happy life and enjoyed it to the fullest, having made a host of friends and (I hope) very few enemies.

Always having been an idealist, rather than a realist, it was natural that I should answer the call of my conscience to join the service in a crusade against a barbarous enemy who threatens to annihilate mankind. I should never have been able to rest in peace for the rest of my days had I ignored the call.

The greatest problem I had to solve was the one of the Robb family. I knew that, having been brought up as true Canadians, the whole family would plunge into the conflict body and soul, and that there would be hearts broken—those at home who could do nothing but wait. Yes, they also serve. Whatever the end may be, you will all be able to proudly walk in any company and explain "We did our bit!" I am the lucky one, as I have gone to a land where there is no time. It will be only a momentary lapse in the infinite before you are all with me, and so, courage!

Having considered our manner of living and making an odious comparison with that one which Hitler is trying to push on us, I could arrive at no other decision than to help preserve our civilization. The country that had been so kind to our family was in danger. Was the supreme sacrifice too much to give? No. A quarter of a century ago, thousands of our young men were forced to make the same decision. They held up their part bravely, and died in the realization of having accomplished their goal. But the goal was not reached—it was only a lull in the storm. To us they threw the torch, and my only hope is that I have the fortitude and ability to be able to handle it in the same proud and unconquerable manner. One of these nights I will climb into my plane and take off into the black. I shall ascend above the clouds to the peaceful atmosphere only realized by those chosen few who have been given the opportunity of meeting it. How strange it is—so serene, calm and clean. It is like being taken out of a world gone mad for blood into a land of make believe. White billowy clouds below, and the moon and stars brightly beaming from above. I will sit back and thank God that He has allowed me this divine pleasure in His and would. I will take a deep breath of the sweet fresh air—for miles. It will be this — thinking to myself, "God's in His Heaven, all's right with the world."

Suddenly the realization will sweep over me that all's not right with the world. I will be rudely awakened from my reverie with that peculiar odor associated with an aircraft. Fumes of burnt petrol stinging my nostrils—the ominous hum of my motor—I have reached my destination. Alas! I must descend to the cruel world once more. Even my kite senses the change. From the cabin rocking back and forth it will begin to shudder as I give it more power. We will be tossed about by the turbulent clouds — confusion will reign everywhere. Blue pencils of light will stab out, searching frantically for the death-dealing monster that is coming to revenge those people of the horribly scarred English cities. Bomb doors open. There go the messengers of death, one from London, one from Coventry, one from Birmingham and so on until the monster will be repaid a thousand fold for the destruction of our people.

The Germans will scurry to their little rat holes to get away from us, but the angel of death will be down there, swinging his flaming sword in ever-increasing circles, and ever-increasing frenzy. I will say a prayer for these people whose minds have become so distorted that they believed themselves capable of ruling the world. Pity will reel out of my soul, but after all a mad dog must be exterminated, and below me will be thousands of "mad dogs." Horrible vengeance will be meted out to those who aided the destruction of some of my best friends.

Suddenly there will be a horrible crash—we've had it! A lucky hit—perhaps I should say an unlucky hit. Surprisingly, I am not afraid—a peace that I never before knew engulfs me, and I wait impatiently to pass through the gates into the unknown.

To you who are left behind is a task—a huge task. A new world order must be created, where men can live in peace and plenty without fear or prejudice. It is up to you to see our job finally completed. No more lives must be sacrificed to satisfy the hunger of Mars. Beat your swords into ploughshares. Preach the gospel of "Peace on earth, good-will toward men." Never again allow the rivers of our world to run red with the blood of our youth. I am depending on you and soul, and that there would be hearts broken—those at home who could do nothing but wait. Yes, they also serve. Whatever the end may be, you will all be able to proudly walk in any company and explain "We did our bit!" I am the lucky one, as I have gone to a land where there is no time. It will be only a momentary lapse in the infinite before you are all with me, and so, courage!

The ancient philosopher, Confucius, once wrote: "It is not truth that makes men great, but man that makes truth great." This is the sort of man that must be molded in the future generations, for if there is great truth on earth, then there will be great men, and great men are certainly not those who try to become great at the expense of other people.

Story-going-the-rounde: Apparently Hitler made a telephone call to heaven, asking for Moses. "I'd like some information about that Red Sea job of yours," he said to Moses. "I want to get my boys across the English Channel this spring. You used a rod, as I remember it, to make the waters roll back. Is that right? And if so, I'd like to borrow the rod."

"That's right," said Moses. "Unfortunately, the rod is no longer in my possession."

"Where is it?" asked Hitler, "perhaps I could get it."

"It is in the British museum," Moses replied.—Ex.

FALLS AT HEAD OF MARBLE CANYON, KOOTENAY NATIONAL PARK, BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA

From the earliest days of exploration in Canada, waterfalls have occupied a prominent place in the annals of our intrepid path-finders. Some of these falls are famous on account of their volume and impressive grandeur, some on account of their scenic beauty and tremendous height, some on account of their legendary and historic associations, and others because of the unique rock formations over which they hurl their waters in a succession of leaping, foaming, wild cataracts. Much has been written about the potential and developed waterpower of many of these falls and the part they play in the industrial life of Canada, but much still remains to be written of their artistic and inspirational value to society and to the tourist industry of Canada.

In the great wealth of natural phenomena which makes Canada's national parks the playgrounds of millions of people, waterfalls have a place of special importance. This is particularly true of the national parks in the mountains of Alberta and British Columbia.

Picture, for instance, the Twin Falls in Yoho National Park pouring seemingly out of the blue sky in two great cascades, dropping 600 feet to the floor of the Yoho Valley. The waters of these spectacular falls have their source in the Yoho, Wapta and other glaciers on the surrounding mountains. A picturesque trail winds up the Yoho Valley to the Twin Falls and on to Yoho Glacier.

Lower down the Yoho Valley, Takakkaw Falls leaps over a massive limestone cliff, tumbling in a glorious curtain of green waters and foaming spray down to the Yoho River 1,500 feet below. This is the highest cataract on the North American continent, and one of the most impressive sights in the national parks of Canada.

There are numerous waterfalls in Banff National Park, but perhaps one of the most interesting is the Giant Steps in Paradise Valley. According to Indian legend, these steps formed the ancient staircase of giant Indian spirits of the Upper Air who came down to carry mortals away to their heavenly abode, somewhere above the top of Horseshoe Glacier. The Wasatch (Indian word for beautiful) River leaps over these immense rectangular blocks of stone and, when viewed from some angles, gives the impression of a huge natural staircase leading up the mountain. The coloring is almost unbelievable when the sun shines on the spray formed by this rushing torrent.

Athabasca Falls, besides being one of the scenic highlights in Jasper Park, captures up memories of early days in the region when David Thompson and other distinguished explorers were blazing new trails along the Athabasca Valley and over the Athabasca Pass to the "Western" ocean. The Athabasca River, which has its source in the great Columbia Icefield, gathers tremendous volume from its many tributaries before tumbling over the Athabasca Falls into a gorge 80 feet deep. The main body of the river, striking the wall of the canyon with terrific force, is hurled back into midstream where it boils, churns, seethes and tosses, swirling in great whirlpools, flinging up clouds of spray. The scene is wildly beautiful with a setting of alpine grandeur that is breath-taking.

At Cameron Falls in Waterton Lakes National Park one of the most unique rock formations in the region is exposed. The rocks of this park occur in three broadfolds which trend in a northwesterly direction. The central fold is an upward arch with axis conforming to the lower part of Cameron Brook. Erosion along the crest of this fold has exposed at Cameron Falls some of the oldest rocks to be observed anywhere in the Canadian Rockies. Here, horizontal beds of dolomitic rock have been tilted sharply upward so that the falls pour tumultuously over this sharp diagonal, a great part of its mass aliding to the lower western end before tumbling onto the rocks below.

These are but a few examples of the many waterfalls which add color and charm to Canada's national parks and make a holiday in these superb playgrounds a never-to-be-forgotten experience.

CARIBOU IN CANADA'S NATIONAL PARKS

The mountain caribou of Jasper National Park in Alberta, and Glacier and Mount Revelstoke national parks in British Columbia, is very seldom seen by those whose travels are confined to the motorways. In the summer it lives mostly above the timberline, on high alpine meadows far from the roads rather than on the steep slopes overlooking them. In winter it comes down into the woods. Park wardens on their lonely rounds and others whom the spirit of adventure takes back into the hills, find a great deal of pleasure in watching the behavior of caribou herds. The mountain caribou living in the Selkirk and part of the Rockies is undoubtedly a close relation of the woodland caribou of the forests farther east. Some herds of woodland caribou range into Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan.

TECHNICAL SCHOOLS HUM TO KEEP WAR MACHINE GOING

Technical schools throughout Canada are humming with activity as men and women are trained at top speed to keep pace with increasing manpower requirements of the armed services and war industries. Under the department of labor's emergency training programme, young men are trained to become tradesmen in the army and air force. Older men or others discharged from the services and women are learning trades to take up battle posts in Canada's war factories. These photos show pre-en-

HITLER CALLS UP HELL

Hitler called the Devil on the telephone one day. The girl at the Central listened to all he had to say.

"Hello," she heard old Adolf say. "Is old man Satan home?"

Just tell him it is Hitler.

"That wants him on the phone."

"What can I do," the devil said.

"My dear old Adolf Hitler.

If there's anything that I can do

To help you sure I will."

Then Adolf said, "Now listen,

And I will try to tell

The way that I am running

On earth a modern hell.

I've saved for this for many years

And I've started out to kill.

That it was a modern job.

Just leave to old Adolf Hill.

"My army's gone through countries

Shooting women and children down.

We tore up all the country

And blew up every town.

Our planes dropped bombs on cities.

Killing both old and young.

And what our bombs didn't get

We've taken out and hung.

"I started out for Russia.

With the aid of tanks, but, alas!

The Russians, damn them, stopped us

And would not let us pass.

My submarines are devils.

Why, you should see them fight.

They go smacking through the ocean

And will sink a ship on sight.

"I was running things to suit me.

'Till about a few months ago.

When a man called Franklin Roosevelt

Just warned me to go slow.

He says to me, 'Sir Adolf,

We don't want to make you sore.

So be sure and tell your U-boats

To sink our ships no more.

"We've told you for the last time.

So, Adolf, it's up to you.

And if you do not try to stop it

You will have to fight us, too."

"I did not listen to him.

And he's coming after me

With a million Yankee soldiers

From their home across the sea.

Now that's why I called you, Satan.

For I want advice from you;

I know that you will tell me

Just what I ought to do."

"My friend, old Adolf Hitler,

There's not much for me to tell.

For the Yanks will make it hotter

Than I ever could in hell.

"I've been a mean old devil.

But not half as mean as you;

And the minute that you get here

I'll hand the job to you.

I'll be ready for your coming.

And I'll keep the fire bright.

I'll make your room all ready.

Now these Yanks have started fight.

"For the boys in tan will get you.

I have nothing more to tell;

Hang up the phone and get your hat

And meet me here in hell."

"SCOTTIE" IS SAVED TO PRESBYTERIANS

Everyone will be glad to know that Jim Wood has pulled his little Scottie through a tough illness, and she and her six puppies are now in top form.

The importance of this recovery, says Jim Wood, lies in the fact that his Scottie is a staunch Presbyterian, and there are too few of this persuasion left in the world.

When his little Presbyterian was stricken, he searched the phone book for all true Scots, and the cry of the clansmen went singing over the countryside. Instantly they rallied to his call, responding with all the bedside lore of the ages.

Chieftain Bill Fraser came through with the most practical advice, but it could be said that in spirit all the Scots of this district were consulting on the case. Such a combination is unbeatable, and the Scottie responded nobly.

Now the mother Presbyterian and six little Presbyterians are saved for the betterment of the world. The father also is a purebred "black" Presbyterian, and he's doing all right, too.

With this new livestock interest in Jim Wood's life, there has been a temporary lapse in gardening. But this may be merely a rumor put out to lull his turnip rivals into false security.—High River Times.

Twenty-two degrees of frost was recorded in Blairmore on Saturday morning last, and eighteen degrees on Sunday morning. East of the Frank slide, many leaves that had opened up were turned black.

Special mention should have been made in reports of the recent floods of the splendid services rendered by our telephone staff and members of the R.C.M.P. They seemed to be on the job at any time.

Customer (heatedly): "You ought to be in the war instead of in this grocery business!"

Customer: "No enemy could stand up to the way you charge."

Hundreds of sweating, swearing, shivering, swooning women made it an incident to be remembered at Halifax recently, when a sale of 600 pairs of nylon stockings was staged, only two pairs to a customer. The eruption was next to the big Halifax explosion. Before the store opened its doors, leg-conscious women were lined up for half a block. Salesgirls rang up $1,100 in the record time of twenty minutes. One woman fainted.

According to a press dispatch from Edmonton, members of the Alberta legislature receive an extra gasoline allowance by reason of their position while members of the House of Commons do not. If this statement is correct, it requires some explanation from the authorities in charge of gasoline rationing.—Calgary Herald.

A WORD IN SEASON

The following poem appearing on a poster sent out by a bakery seems appropriate at this time that we are taking the liberty of reprinting it. The author is unknown:

When you do your daily shopping
At the stores nearby,
Tall your grocer you will carry
All you're going to buy.

Tell him to dispense with wrapping
If you can do without.
You'll be helping conservation—
Of that there is no doubt.

If you have to phone your order,
Allow him time enough
To get it on the one delivery
Or the going will be tough.

If the service is much slower,
Don't utter one complaint,
Do not ask your wartime grocer
To give you what he mayn't.

RECKONING

Hitler—what of the Night
With the bombs and debris flying?
Can you bear the guilt
Of the young blood spilt,
And the whimpering of children crying?

Hitler—what of the Name
Of the proud land you're deceiving?
Would you make it then,
In the mouths of men,
A muttered curse, and a grieving?

Hitler—what of the Land
That was peaceful, with harvests growing?
Must it write in pain,
Must it once again
Be darkened by brave blood flowing?

Hitler—what of the Day,
Of the Day when the Fates will reckon
That your hour is spent—
Will you be content
As the ghosts of your victims beckon?

EXTREMES DO MEET

License was issued for the marriage of Ebenezer Sweet and Jane Lemon. The inquiring reporter who got hold of the copy had a rhyming as well as inquiring instinct, and wrote it up:

"Behold how great extremes do meet
In Jane and Ebenezer;
For Jane's no longer sour but sweet,
And Eb's a lemon squeezer."

A WORKMAN'S COTTAGE

A heap of bricks and mortar, of broken glass and slate; a splintered piece of wreckage that was once a garden gate; a little fellow's wagon, all twisted, red with rust, and old rag doll, one arm gone, lying in the dust.

This was once a workman's cottage, with a garden trim and neat, a little path of cobblestones, a picket fence and seat, where he was wont to sit at night to watch his children play, as he smoked his pipe and talked about the topics of the day.

His wife would sit beside him, busy fingers darning socks, at her feet a little toddler building castles out of blocks. Sometimes a friend and neighbor would come over for a chat, or to play a game of checkers, while they argued this and that. Last night those Nazi butchers dropped a thundering load of hate, and this morning there is nothing left within that shattered gate but a little twisted wagon and a one-armed orphaned doll, some crumbling bricks and motor, and sadness, that is all. —Ontario Dental Journal.

"Well, my son, what did you learn in Sunday school today?"

"We learned all about a cross-eyed bear."

SONG FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

School children throughout Canada are playing a splendid role in the purchase of War Savings Stamps and Certificates. In appreciation of this fact, and in order to further the good work, John Murray Gibbon, general publicity agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, noted Canadian author and poet, has written new and stirring words to that grand old tune, "Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching." The new song, which is now a school favorite, is "Stamps, stamps, stamps, that we are buying." The words in full follow:

In the schoolroom as I sit,
Thinking, officers brave, of you,
And the thundering of the guns across the sea.

How I want to do my bit
With my lessons all are through,
And to help you fight to keep our country free!

Chorus
Stamps, stamps, stamps that we are buying,
Fill up folders one by one.
Soon we'll have enough to get
Bomb or tank or trim corvette,
And our savings will put Hitler on the run.

In the battlefield you stand
Where the deadly bombers dive,
And you need a Bren or anti-aircraft gun.

So to help you we have planned
With our stamps to make a drive,
And we'll raise a hundred million ere we're done!

Chorus
So I think up some old chore
As within the school I sit,
And I know I'll never let a chance go by

That will earn a quarter more
And will help me do my bit
With the Savings Stamps that boys and girls may buy.

Chorus
—Exchange.

Don't be a CUPBOARD QUISLING!

"Cupboard Quislings"! Is that too hard a name for people who selfishly lay in unnecessary stocks of clothes or food, or other goods for fear of shortages?

No! The name is not too hard, even though it may be earned through thoughtlessness. For in reality they are doing, in a petty, mean way, what the Quisling does in the open.

Anyone who buys more than is necessary for current needs—

Is breaking his country's law for personal advantage.

Is betraying his loyal neighbours and those who are not so well off as he.

Is, in effect, depriving our fighting men of the munitions and supplies they must have to defend us.

Is hindering our war effort and helping our enemies.

Loyal citizens avoid putting unnecessary and abnormal strains on our factories. In time of war, loyal citizens do not spend one dollar more on civilian goods than is absolutely necessary for current needs.

The law provides for fines up to $5,000 and imprisonment up to two years for hoarding; and hoarding is just another word for unnecessary selfish buying.

In cases where it is advisable for you to buy in advance of your immediate requirements—such as your next season's coal supply—you will be encouraged to do so by direct statement from responsible officials.

Stories Of Romantic Period In History Of British Columbia

The death of Clarence Harper Tingley, born in Victoria 72 years ago, recalls one of the romantic periods in British Columbia's history, the 30 years and more during which his father, the late Stephen Tingley, drove for and operated the "B.X.", the famous express service on the Cariboo Road.

The first Cariboo expressman was Billy Ballou who, for four years maintained a more or less regular communication between the mining districts on the Fraser and the creeks and the outside. Ballou's service was crude and was carried on under circumstances of extreme hardship. So was that of his rival, F. J. Barnard, who is said to have walked the whole distance from Yale to the Cariboo mines with papers and letters on his back not once but several times.

In 1862, Barnard established a pony express and secured the mail contract and that put Ballou out of the running. This was the beginning of Barnard's Express, the "B.X.", which, for many years controlled transportation to the Cariboo and operated a famous line of stage coaches.

Tingley was associated with Barnard practically from the establishment of the pony express, first as driver, then as partner. Later he bought out the business and operated it himself for more than 30 years.

For many years, Steve Tingley was the best known whip in the West. It was he who drove Lord and Lady Dufferin through the Fraser canyons. Lady Dufferin sat beside him on the box of the coach on the return journey to Yale and records proudly in her diary that the driver told her she "hadn't a scare in her." Vancouver Province.

The son of a Polish mother living in Creon, Pa., was killed in the battle of Java, one of the heroic dead of our Navy. The immigrant mother was sent the check for $5,000 covering his federal insurance.

She refused it, saying our government needed the money, that she and her coal-mining husband could get along without it.

Sold Well In Norway Until Nazis Detected The Allegory

An apparently innocent animal story, "Snorre the Seal, a Fable for Children and Adults," was a best seller in Norway, until the Germans detected the allegory. The book told of a small seal (Norway) which was made prisoner by the killer whale (Germany). The seal had an Uncle Walrus (England), who came to the aid of the seal and together they fooled the killer whale, "which eventually was caught in a rock fissure." Included in the story were two seagulls (Quislings) with red marks above one eye (the brand of Cain), who betrayed their former friend of the sea.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 24

THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY WITH THE DISCIPLES

Golden text: This do in remembrance of me. Luke 22:19.
Lesson: Luke 22:17-38.
Devotional reading: John 14:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

At the Paschal Feast, Luke 22:14-15. When Jesus and his disciples were seated for the Passover meal, he spoke to them with great intensity of feeling, saying, "With desire I have desired [I have longed more than I can say] to eat this Passover with you before I suffer." We can readily understand his overwhelming desire to partake of that special meal with his disciples. The occasion points back to a most memorable event which reminded them of the beginning of their life as the people of God, and in the instituting at that time of the Lord's Supper he linked the old and new together.

The Institution of the New Feast, the Lord's Supper, Luke 22:19, 20. As Jesus told them and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave to them, saying, "This is my body which is given for you." This represents my body.

"This do in remembrance of me." By this act recall me to mind, even as the Paschal feast recalled to your mind the deliverance from Egypt. And he gave them the cup saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood, even that which is poured out for you." The graphic present is used because his sacrificial death was close at hand. The new covenant: a sacrifice was usually offered in ratification of a covenant. In the contrast of the old and the new, there is clearly a reference to Jeremiah 31:31 as well as to Exodus 24:8. (A. E. Garvie).

The Announcement of the Betrayal, Luke 22:21-23. "But behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table." "He that dipeth with me in the dish." Luke 22:20; the dish contained the sauce of bitter herbs. To John, Jesus indicated that it was Jesus. In 13:26. By putting verses 21-23 after verse 16, we would make Jesus' announcement of the traitor's presence given before the instituting of the memorial and therefore in harmony with the account as given by Matthew and Mark.

"I know I am," the boy replied, "but that's the side I shall have to wear when the suit comes down to me."

WALKING FOR HEALTH

"Walk your way to health" is the advice of E. A. Conklin, writing in the current issue of "Hygieia." He asks: "Are you one of those who dislike the very thought of walking when a car, bus or other vehicle is available? 'If you are,' he advises, 'it's really too bad, because apart from its many physical benefits, a daily walk actually improves your mental condition tremendously. If you're inclined to be melancholy when you awake in the morning, a walk will help chase away your depression. If you have deep-rooted worries on your mind, walking will give your weary brain a temporary respite and allow you to face your difficulties a little later with renewed vitality."

Mr. Conklin believes that posture is important in walking. He says: "You miss half the joys life can offer if your head is up in the clouds or directed towards the street beneath your feet. Try being comfortably erect, watching and checking on yourself at frequent intervals. If the muscles which control your posture have become a bit stiff and cause unwelcome pains, keep at it; slowly but surely nature will adjust you to your newly found physical position."

"Hand in hand with correct posture," writes Mr. Conklin, "goes the mileage you may put into your daily walking expeditions. For the beginner, a mile is sufficient. The experienced walker can gracefully stand four times as much. Walkers find that by gradually increasing the scope of their walks at the rate of an additional half mile each week, they are soon able to look a five-mile hike in the face with winning ease."

—By—
ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXII

Tamar remembered Ransome's warning about riding on the Cricket Hill Rd. after she had turned Madcap's head toward the dusty trail that led to the Fettes's shack. She wasted no time on thinking of it, though, for there were other things to consider.

She had called Dr. Forrester before she left Shadwell, and wondered if she would know what to do during the time that it would take to drive out from Tablahneka. Even though she had taken a course in home nursing at the seminary, it seemed that she could never grow accustomed to the sight of suffering.

As usual, the ramshackle gate was cluttered with dirty children and dogs. Tamar threw Madcap's bridle to one of the older boys and ran into the house.

She knew that she could never forget the next half hour before the doctor and his assistant arrived. Over all the poverty hung the atmosphere of careless indifference which seemed to accompany the Fettes's standard of living. Tamar thought: she could have taught the older girls to wash dishes and to scrub floors.

She had sent one of the children to the field to call his father who presently stalked in. Tamar wished that she had not sent for him, because he was so dirty.

She knew enough about the preparations and she gave instructions so that things would be ready for Dr. Forrester. She heard his quick firm step outside and was thankful.

He took hold of her arm. "Good girl, Tamar. We'll take charge from here. You run along now. It was thinking perhaps this will be good for her—help get her mind off her mother."

Tamar shuddered visibly when she reached the doorway. "Come by Shadwell if you need anything." The Fettes didn't even have a telephone. "I'm prepared for every emergency. But she's going to be all right. She has to be," he added grimly. "Think what this responsibility would be for some one else to have to shoulder. His glance took in everything."

Fettes followed Tamar to her waiting mare. "I shure thank yo' Miss Randolph. Margold told me what you done. I couldn't git along without the old woman, but then she's gonna be all right. Ye couldn't let Maria," his mild attempt at humor touched Tamar.

"Madcap's a purty little mare. I think this other road's just a little better, why don't you take it back to Shadwell?"

Tamar's eyes followed his pointing finger down the dusty road which led past his barren field. It looked hot and she knew that it was the longer way home. And besides, it led past the row of dirty houses and dirtier children occupying Squatter's Square.

"Thanks, Mr. Fettes. But I believe I'll go the same way I came." She turned the mare's head. She was aware that he stood by the fence and watched her until she turned the bend.

She wished suddenly that she could plunge into the waters of the Cheate and purge the feeling of uncleanness which pervaded her senses. As she rode slowly along little things began to come to her attention.

Margold Fettes's dress, although slick from the soil of many days' wearing, was new. The bright plaids of the other girl's dresses came back to her vividly. There had been a new boiler for the water, and one by one many things in the tumble-down house were recalled as being recently purchased. "Until now the truck standing in the side yard had simply not registered. Had it taken the place of the old spring wagon? Where, she asked herself, had Fettes got the money?"

Tamar knew enough about the family to know that their credit, excepting for a few groceries, had been brought to an abrupt end by the merchants of Tablahneka. Dresses, household equipment, these could be bought by his results from panning the red soil. But a truck? And gasoline to run it?

Had Fettes seemed overly anxious about her going back to the Cricket

Hill Road? She stopped, stunned with the impact of this last thought.

With determination she then urged Madcap forward. Shrugging her slender shoulders beneath their green sweater, she thought, "I am certainly getting to be a suspicious monster."

The old wagon track that she had known as a child had widened into a dusty road which trucks and cars cut out of the red clay. The narrow, wheel-covered tracks that led to the Fettes's joined sharply to the wider road at a place hidden by thick undergrowth.

Beyond the junction there was a sharp rise in the mine road, concealing what lay ahead. It had been weeks since Tamar had crossed the top of the hill.

Below her lay the swimming hole. She looked at the countryside around her. It was peacefully still and warm. The thought of the swimming hole drew her and she recalled vividly the last time that she had gone there.

"I'll ride Madcap to the top of the hill toward the mine," she thought. Madcap picked her way daintily along the firm ground at the side of the dust. Her sleek coat shone in the sun and her proud little head was held high.

Tamar pulled on the bridle as they neared the rise, slowing Madcap's walk to a halt at the top. Below her, just a few yards away, men were working on the road. There were three of them, picks and shovels in hand. They looked up sharply as she appeared, and one of them called out, "The road's being repaired. You'd better go back, Miss Randolph."

Tamar never knew afterward why she thought he sounded too excited merely to be warning her about the condition of the road. Without a word, she brought her hand down sharply on Madcap's shoulders and started forward.

Tamar heard one of the men say something in a low tone. "There's a bad place here, the road's given out beneath—or something," he called warningly.

The next instant Madcap stepped into a deep ditch that had certainly not been visible, and Tamar thought of camouflage as she went over Madcap's head into the dust.

The men swore viciously. The mare had broken her leg and would have to be shot. "What in hell will we do with her? We haven't got long to decide."

Tamar lay in the dust where she had fallen while they talked. She tried to sit up but was too dizzy. She began to realize they were frantically discussing her.

"Townsie will give us hell for messing this up."

"Who'd have thought she'd pick to day to go to the mine? Jake, you'll have to take her some place in the car."

"We'll go to shoot the mare and get her out of here before the truck comes along. Get that rope out of the car." Their voices were harsh with excitement.

Tamar knew a sickening wash of fear sweep over her. Kill Madcap? Why Madcap was one of the family. She cried out, but the men working furiously didn't pay any attention. She stood up and the world whirled about her, but she walked slowly to the mare. She laid her hand against that of the little roan, and knew that she would always remember the look in Madcap's eyes. She suddenly couldn't hear it any longer. Great wrenching sobs finally got Jake's attention.

"Lady, will you shut up that bawlin'? We've got troubles enough without havin' 'yer waterin' the place. I'm sorry we've got to shoot her. She's a purty little thing."

"Don't get soft, Jake. Get away, Miss!" shouted one.

"Oh, don't kill her! Don't, please don't!" begged Tamar. In a frenzy she ran toward the man with the gun.

"Don't! Oh, don't!" Tamar saw that his face had brutally indelibly printed upon it. It was hard as steel and etched with lines of cruelty. He deliberately held her in the grip of one hand and aimed with the other.

When the shot rang out, Tamar was thrown violently to one side. "Want a bullet for yourself?" He turned back to the men. "Hit her on to the truck and drag her out. We've got to hurry."

Tamar watched in fascinated terror with tears streaming down her face, while they pulled Madcap out of the ditch and dragged her, with much swearing and backing of the truck. They took the dead animal back to the clump of undergrowth of the junction out of sight.

In her helplessness, rage possessed Tamar. Why was it important they hurry?

"Why will Major Towns be angry for this mess?" she asked coldly of Jake.

Jake said nothing. The man who seemed to be the leader finally threw down his pick.

"She's your job, Jake. Take care of her until this is over."

"What'll I do with her?" "Put her in the truck and drive—my God! he broke off. "Bister, you're here in a tough spot. Fool women!" He called Jake to one side and they talked in low tones.

Without a word, Tamar started down the road toward home. She began to run. She must get home and warn her father about this. She knew now that she had been so concerned with Madcap that she had not given a chance for common sense to tell her what was about to happen.

She heard a car start up, and diving through the men's purpose, broke through the wall of hedge, scratching herself on the thorns. But the driver had seen her. He threw on the brakes and followed her, catching her roughly by the arm.

She knew only one brief regret, before he picked her up and carried her to the car. It was not Jake.

British Princesses Give Dolls To Be Ruffed In United States

Child victims of the war recently got attention at the White House and at the British embassy in Washington.

Now that Princess Elizabeth is 16 and officially grown-up, and her sister, Princess Margaret Rose, is but four years younger, they have apparently decided to give up their dolls.

Five of their dolls—two of them wearing copies of gowns Queen Elizabeth wore on her visit to the United States in 1939—have been given to the British War Relief to be shown in that country, and later raffled off in behalf of aid for European child refugees in Britain.

Gardening

The advantage of good seed cannot be overemphasized, and especially now when time is so precious. Other factors may be beyond control but the gardener has absolute check over his seed. Weather, soil and location may be ideal but without good seed, specially selected to suit Canadian conditions, the garden is going to be a failure and all the time in planning out into it, largely lost.

Weed Killers
There are now liquid killers on the market to prevent grass or weeds growing in driveways. Care must be exercised to keep these materials away from wanted grass, flowers or shrubbery as they destroy all growth. Another suitable material for driveways is common salt. The cheaper and coarser, the better. Not only will a liberal application of this—about one or two handfuls to the square foot—destroy grass, weeds, poison ivy, etc., but it will also bind gravel and soil together into an even surface, keep down dust and repel frost.

Garden Freshness
There is no substitute for the really fresh quality of vegetables grown at the door and picked when they reach just the right stage of maturity. Such have a flavor all their own. But there are plenty of people with big gardens that do not enjoy as much of this freshness as they should. With them there are a few meals of green peas, baby carrots and beets, new potatoes and corn, and that is all. Either the first or second or else there is nothing left but over-mature vegetables which should have been eaten days or weeks before. To develop a steady, long supply of really fresh vegetables, experts advise making at least three sowings of all types, the first a week or so before the regular time, the second at the regular time, and the third a week or ten days later.

Several species of minute insects live in the ice of the glaciers on Mount Rainer, hopping about like tiny bees.
